Introduction

Agility as a new organizational paradigm has been adopted by a number of companies in various industries. It is perceived that, in the next 5 years, this philosophy will be adopted exponentially by organizations; That is why we are at the right time to start developing our competencies and skills that lead us to develop as agile leaders that impact academic, professional and work environments.

In this training, leaders will find clarity about what it is to be, think and act like an agile leader. They will discover those areas that they must reinforce to generate value in their teams and organizations, and they will take a toolbox to support the growth and evolution of both personal and teams.
